

School Transition Report

At Awen Case Management & Advocacy, our Allied Health Social Workers work 1:1 with families and allied health colleagues to provide a school transition report to a child's school and teacher for each new school year.

What is a School Transition Report?

A School Transition Report is a collaborative style report consisting of our Social Workers speaking with your allied health team and classroom teacher to reflect and plan for a stronger and better 2025.

Our aim is to understand:

1. From a parent/carers perspective, what have been the successes, concerns and challenges for 2024? What do you want to see done differently in 2025?
2. From an allied health perspective, what have been the successes and concerns in 2024 and what can we do better/recommend in 2025?
3. From a school's perspective, how can your allied health team better support the school? Do they have concerns or needs we need to address?

A School Transition Report is developed in collaboration with your entire team to make sure that we pre-plan and have direction for the new school year. It is about not having to wait for school to return in order to strengthen supports and relationships.

Cost of a School Transition Report

Each School Transition Report is funded under a child's NDIS package in Improved Daily Living. It is billed at $387.98-$581.97 which allows us to liaise with everyone involved in your child's care.

If you do not have the NDIS, you can still have a School Transition Report. The cost is $387.98-$581.97 per child and is billed at the start of the process.

Who creates the School Transition Report?

Our accredited and qualified AASW Social Workers consult with you, your school and your entire allied health team. We also, when possible, speak to each child. We build and execute each report.

Reports will be emailed everyone involved in your child's care.
